

Proposal Review Criteria

for the 13th JURE Conference, Frankfurt, Germany (2010)

Your proposal will be judged by at least two JURE 2010 committee members. For acceptance your proposal should fulfill at least five out of the seven following criteria:

1. Research in the field of learning and instruction (necessary requirement)
2. Clear theoretical grounding of the research
3. Clear statement of the research question
4. Clarity of the research design (participants – conditions – research context – variables, etc)
5. Clarity of (planned) methodology (data collection, instruments, and analyses etc)
6. Presence of an appropriate discussion (on the research topic, research questions, design, methodology, relevance or results)
7. Significance for educational practice and/or theory development in the field of education and/or educational policy

Theoretical or methodological papers should include information that is the equivalent of the criteria 4 and 5 for those genres of scholarly work.
